SHANLEYS STILL ON GOOD TERMS

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Oct. 1.—

Mrs. Agnes Smith Shanley, the divorced wife of F. P. Shanley, proprietor of the International Hotel of this city and of John Haviland, also of this city, returned here yesterday on the liner Korea from Honolulu to get the final decree that will leave her free to wed again. When she sets the decree, she will return to Honolulu and become the wife of James K. Parker, son of Colonel Sam Parker, the wealthy Hawaiian sugar king.

Mrs. Shanley's matrimonial affairs have been of local interest for some time. Although she and Shanley were divorced a year ago, they continued to live in the same hotel, the International, in which both have an interest. They explained to friends that although the matrimonial partnership had been dissolved, they were still business partners, and as there is no sentiment in business, there was no good reason why they both shouldn't live in their own hotel.

Before Mrs. Shanley went to Honolulu it was rumored she was engaged to Walter McCredie, manager and proprietor of the Portland baseball team. She denied this and said that her interest in McCredie was merely the platonic regard of a fan for the head of the team she had picked to win the pennant.

Shanley is said to be anxious to have the decree of divorce set aside. He was at the pier when the liner docked and took charge of his former wife's baggage, which he helped carry to the waiting automobile. She, however, accepted his attentions merely as the ordinary courtesies extended by the proprietor of an hotel to a welcome guest. His gladness had a little more sentiment mixed with it than is usually accorded the casual guest, but she played the casual guest to perfection.

bed and polished, would be suitable. An American piano finish would be my choice for this most beautiful wood."

LAYMEN'S MISSIONS TO ENTERTAIN WICKES

At a meeting yesterday of the Laymen's Missionary committee of Central Union church arrangements were made to give a dinner in honor of Rev. Dean Rockwell Wickes, who is in Honolulu accompanied by Mrs. Wickes, en route to China as a missionary.

About a year ago the laymen of Central Union church forwarded applications to the American Board of Missions to have a man sent here to act in the capacity of a missionary for the laymen of the church, and to be supported by them. Mr. Wickes was sent here and was assigned to work in China.

DUKE AWAITING WEDDING SUIT

For awhile today there was great consternation among the dolls which will be on sale Saturday at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel. Duke Kahanamoku's wedding suit had not materialized. Now everybody knows that even a doll must have the proper attire and especially so when he is going to claim such a charming bride as Mary Ellen.

Florence, Adelaide, Gladys Eleanor and a number of dolls who will probably be chosen as bridesmaids at the last moment, were afraid there might not be any wedding. If Duke didn't have the proper clothes, but Mrs. M. E. Perley has come to the rescue and will see that Duke's suit is ready in time. Mrs. Scott dressed Mary Ellen and of course Mrs. Perley will see that Duke's costume will equal Mary's in style, beauty and appropriateness.
